

Dear Students:

I am very sorry to inform you that I am hospitalized due to cerebral infarction (脑梗) happened on the evening of February 27. My right face, hands and feet were unconscious at that time. Fortunately, the rescue was in time. Now I am in the recovery stage. On March 4, I was moved from the ICU to the general ward to continue treatment and observation.

Now I getting recovery gradually, but doctors require me less use computer and mobil phone and less talk. My right hand and right foot have not recovered from illness, typing is very slow, and speaking is not fluent. Reply you will be late and brief. Sometimes I will ask an assistant to reply. It will take some time to go out hospital to see my friends and colleagues, to resume my teaching duties. Please forgive me.

Thanks to my colleague, Prof. Stefano Chesi, who will replace me to teach a few lectures. Prof. Ma and Mr. Zhu will help me with laboratory assignments, etc. We will do our best to make Computational Physics teaching goes smoothly.

Thank you for your concern and support.

H.Q.

Please note our first laboratory will be on March 18, 18:00-18:45 and 18:55-19:40. You will be 1 of the 2 sessions. The first assignment is a bit long, but the late ones will surely be less.

By the way, you should get all notes for teaching up to March 18, either from emails or from website, Mr. Zhu is in charge.
